John Baker

Championship NCAA track and field programs are not built overnight. They are constructed gradually, built upon a strong foundation of pride, tradition and a commitment to excellence. The University of New Mexico track and field program has built its winning legacy with the same championship formula.

Since 1930, New Mexico athletes have earned All-America honors 64 times, won 11 NCAA championships, and claimed 188 conference titles. Among that large group of elite athletes are the stories of exceptional team and individual performances.

Performances like those turned in by the phenomenal 1965 track team, which was arguably the greatest team ever assembled at UNM. Under legendary coach Hugh Hackett, the Lobos never lost a meet that spring and asserted themselves as a national power with a stirring 93 1/3 to 46 2/3 upset of the University of Southern California at University Stadium in Albuquerque. New Mexico won every race on the track as they handed the mighty Trojans their first loss in three years and just their second defeat in 20 years. New Mexico went on to capture its second consecutive conference championship before taking on the field at the NCAA Track and Field Championships. Clarence Robinson swept the long and triple jump to lead the Lobos to a fifth place finish, just 1/2 a point out of fourth and seven points out of first place. The next year, New Mexico finished 11th at the NCAA meet. Robinson's school record of 26-9.25 in the long jump and the 400-meter relay team's time of 39.84, both set in '65, remain two of the oldest school records at UNM. Two years later, the 1967 New Mexico track team would also take fifth at the NCAA Championships after claiming its fourth straight WAC title. With its success throughout the 1960's, New Mexico track and field established its pride and tradition of excellence that has remained with the program ever since.

In addition to the many team accomplishments, there were legendary individuals such as 1961 NCAA Champion and former world record holder Adolph Plummer and the unforgettable John Baker.

On May 25, 1963, the same year UNM hosted the 42nd NCAA Track and Field Championships at University Stadium, Plummer shocked the world in his final appearance wearing the New Mexico cherry and silver at the Western Athletic Conference Championships in Tempe, Ariz. Running the 440-yard dash in an elite field that included Arizona State University's great Ullis Williams, a runner he had never beaten, Plummer had the kind of race most athletes can only dream of. In a 1984 interview in the Albuquerque Tribune, Plummer said the only things he remembered about the race were hearing the starter say "set," before hearing the gun fired. 44.9 seconds later, with Williams yards behind him, Plummer crossed the line to become the new world record holder in the 440. Plummer not only set the world record, but did so with amazing ease as his time shattered Glenn Davis' five-year old world record of 45.7 by an astonishing eight tenths of a second. Though his 440-yard dash record was eventually broken in 1969, Plummer's legacy of greatness was entrenched forever in the history of UNM track and field. After 41 years, his adjusted time of 44.74 in the 400 meters remains UNM's oldest existing school record. In the same Tribune article, Gwynn "Bub" Henry, the father of current UNM track coaches Matt and Mark Henry, and legendary Lobo track and field coach Hugh Hackett remembered

Hugh Hackett (left) was the University of New Mexico's most successful track and field head coach. Under Hackett's tutelage, the UNM track and field program developed into a national powerhouse in the 1960's and 70's.

In a photograph that appeared on the front page of the Albuquerque Journal on Sunday, April 4, 1965, John Baker holds up his fingers in the traditional victory sign as he crosses the finish line to upset a talented field of USC Trojans in the mile. Baker's win propelled the Lobos to a shocking 98 1/3 to 46 2/3 dual meet victory over USC at University Stadium.

Plummer as a superhuman runner.

"Adolph Plummer was a colossus," said Henry. "I can't think of a better word than colossus...God, he could run."

"We used to have 10,000 people at our meets - people used to come just to see him run," said Hackett. "He could beat about anybody...he'd turn 'em around backwards."

Perhaps the best known UNM track & field athlete of all-time was John Baker. Baker was one of the WAC's premier mile runners in the mid-1960s, capturing a pair of conference titles as well as the 1964 WAC cross country crown, but more importantly he was an extraordinary human being. Before cancer eventually claimed his life on Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 26, 1970, Baker devoted himself to helping children on and off the track. His enduring legacy was eventually captured in the short, award-winning film, John Baker's Last Race, which premiered in 1976. Though he never achieved his dream of competing in the 1972 Olympics, Baker was simply a winner throughout his UNM track career. Perhaps the most memorable was his blazing kick which defeated Bruce Bess and a brilliant cast of Southern California milers on April 3, 1965, when New Mexico upset mighty USC in University Stadium.

Plummer and Baker's stories are just two of many that embody the pride, tradition and commitment to excellence that the University of New Mexico track and field program was built upon. Men and women such as Buster Quist, Clarence Robinson, Charles Dramiga, Barbara Butler, Karen Crammond, Ibrahim Kivina, Susan Vigil, Michelle Mathias, Lavern Clarke, Simon Arkell and many more have given their blood, sweat and tears to ensure New Mexico's championship track and field legacy will never be forgotten.

The University of New Mexico hosted the 42nd NCAA Track and Field Championships on June 13-15, 1963 at University Stadium. USC claimed the team championship in '63, but would suffer a humbling defeat at the hands of the Lobos two years later at University Stadium. The stadium is shown below as it looked with full track and field facilities.

Gabriel Okon (left) was one of the greatest short sprinters to compete for the Lobos. In 1987, Okon set school records in the 100 and 200 meters and swept the events at the WAC Outdoor Championships. Okon also set the school record in the indoor 55-meter dash in 1986.

Ibrahim Kivina (right) was one of the best long distance runners in New Mexico school history. A two-time All-American, Kivina also set school records in the 5,000 (1986) and 10,000 meters (1984).

Simon Arkell was a six-time Western Athletic Conference champion in the pole vault (1987-91), a three-time All-American and also owns the UNM indoor and outdoor records in the event.

Barbara Bell (left) and Shannon Vessup (right) combined to win nine individual High Country Athletic Conference titles from 1983-85. Bell swept the 100 and 200 meters at the HCAC championships three straight years, while Vessup won three crowns in the 400 and 400m hurdles. The duo also teamed to help New Mexico sweep the HCAC 4x100 and 4x400 relay titles in 1983 and '84.

Louis Caldera

University President

On August 1, 2003, Louis Caldera began his tenure as the 18th President of the University of New Mexico. In his first year in office he has championed undergraduate honors programs, entrepreneurial innovation and public service.

Prior to assuming his duties at UNM, Caldera was Vice Chancellor for University Advancement of The California State University System. The CSU system is the largest four-year university system in the country, with headquarters in Long Beach and 23 campuses across the state.

As Vice Chancellor, his portfolio included system-wide fundraising and development programs, legislative affairs, community relations, alumni affairs, public affairs and communications. He also served as President of the CSU Foundation.

Before arriving at the CSU System, Caldera held two appointed posts in the Clinton administration. As Secretary of the Army from 1998 to 2001, Caldera, together with the Army's Chief of Staff, General Eric K. Shinseki, announced and set into motion a new vision for a more versatile and highly deployable force.

During his tenure, Caldera also successfully led a reversal of recruiting shortfalls and initiated a range of highly popular educational programs for soldiers and potential recruits.

As Managing Director and Chief Operating Officer of the Corporation for National and Community Service from 1997 to 1998, Caldera ran the federal grant-making agency that supports the volunteer service programs AmeriCorps, the National Senior Service Corps and Learn and Serve America.

Elected to three terms in the California State Assembly, Caldera represented the 46th District, located in and around downtown Los Angeles, from 1992 to 1997.

During his tenure, Caldera chaired several business and finance committees, and was an active proponent of measures to improve the lives of children, particularly in the areas of education, foster care, and health and safety.

Prior to his election to the Assembly, he worked as a Deputy County Counsel for the County of Los Angeles and as an attorney in private practice, including at the law firm of O'Melveny & Myers.

Caldera has served on numerous boards and commissions, including the National Commission on the Senior Year in High School, the Ad Council's Community Affairs Advisory Committee and the Panama Canal Commission. He is also a member of the Council on Foreign Relations. Recent honors include the Department of Defense Distinguished Civilian Award and the U.S. Hispanic Chamber of Commerce Chairman's Award.

Caldera holds a Bachelor of Science degree from the United States Military Academy ('78), an M.B.A. from Harvard Business School ('87) and a Juris Doctor from Harvard Law School ('87). He is married to Eva Orlebeke Caldera and has three daughters, Allegra, Sophia and Camille.

Rudy Davalos

Director of Athletics

Rudy Davalos is in his 12th year as director of athletics at the University of New Mexico. Only Roy Johnson (1920-49) and Pete McDavid (1956-74) have served the office longer. Davalos is the 11th person to hold the position after being named to the post on November 16, 1992.

Davalos was recognized by Sports Illustrated in 2002 as one of the 101 Most Influential Minorities in Sports. Davalos' many accomplishments while at UNM:

Academics

- UNM's highest combined student-athlete semester GPA prior to 1992 was a 2.73 on two occasions...the student-athletes representing the Lobos' 21 sports compiled a 3.02 GPA during both the 2003 fall semester and the 2004 spring semester, the fourth straight semester the Lobos have surpassed a 3.0...the GPA has been at 2.90 or higher for nine consecutive terms...16 student-athletes were named to academic All-America teams in 2003-04, and 77 have gained national academic recognition since 1993

Athletics Competition

- The UNM ski team won the 2004 NCAA championship, the first Lobo program to claim a national title
- In the 10 years before Davalos came to UNM, only five sports combined to win or share 10 conference titles...since his arrival, eight teams have won or shared 30 regular-season or postseason conference championships...UNM has been represented at NCAA postseason competition 98 times since the spring of 1993, while 132 student-athletes have earned All-America recognition
- From 1983-92, football was 29-88 overall and 15-61 in conference play...since 1993, the overall mark is 63-68, 40-43 in league, including five winning seasons, a division title (1997) and the school's only three bowl appearances since 1961
- Men's basketball has made nine trips to the postseason since the 1992-93 season, including six NCAA Tournaments...from 1983-92, the Lobos advanced to the NCAAs once
- All of the women's basketball postseason showings have occurred in the past seven years with four NCAA Tournament showings, including a Sweet 16 appearance in 2003, and three NITs

Attendance

- In 2003, Lobo football set records for single-game (44,075 vs. New Mexico State), season (245,891) and average (35,127) attendance...the top-10 University Stadium crowds have been since 1993
- Average attendance for football since 1993 is

27,817 compared to 17,502 from 1983-92

- Lobo men's and women's basketball both ranked in the top-10 in national average attendance four of the past six years...the women were fourth in 2003-04 at 11,865 a game

Facilities

- With the tremendous aid of the New Mexico State Legislature, governors, local businesses and private contributors, virtually every UNM athletics facility has received a facelift
- Renovations to the northeast corner of the University Stadium are expected to be completed by the start of the 2004 season...capacity was increased to more than 37,000 prior to the start of 2001 with added seats in the north end zone...a new scoreboard and LoboVision videoboard were also installed
- The Tow Diehm Athletics Facility - which houses the weight room, sports medicine and the Lobo football team rates as one of the premier training centers in intercollegiate athletics
- Additional improvements include lights for the football practice fields, renovations and exterior landscaping at The Pit, new locker rooms for men's and women's basketball and the Olympic sports programs, two tennis bubbles, new infield grass and lights for the soccer and track teams and significant improvements to the softball field

Financial

- Not once has UNM finished a fiscal year over budget since Davalos took over
- When Davalos started in 1992, the department's budget was $9.4 million...the Lobos will operate the 2004-05 fiscal year with a budget of nearly $21 million

Fund-Raising

- UNM's nationally-respected marketing and promotions program and fund-raising organization (Lobo Club) produces more than $6 million annually...11 years ago it was less than one-third of that and corporate sponsorships did not exist
- Davalos has been the leader behind several projects that benefit UNM student-athletes like the nine sold-out skysuites at University Stadium and the Lobo Level seating at The Pit, which adds nearly $500,000 a year to the scholarship fund

Hired to be the athletics director at Houston in January, 1987, Davalos was credited with the procurement of gift-in-kind donation to the Cougar athletics department in excess of $32 million. He spearheaded projects at UH that led to a state-of-the-art athletics facility, a baseball stadium, tennis courts and renovation of departmental offices.

With Davalos at the controls of the UH athletics department, the Cougar program enjoyed enormous success. The Houston football program produced a Heisman Trophy winner (Andre Ware in 1989) during the Davalos tenure.

While at Houston, Davalos served on the NCAA Men's Basketball Committee from the Midwest Region. He was relieved of those duties when he took the New Mexico job, but returned to the committee on September 1, 1994, an appointment that ended in 1999. Davalos now serves on the NCAA Div. I Women's Basketball Committee. He has also served on the NCAA Championship Competition Cabinet and the NCAA Div. I Baseball Committee.

Davalos' administrative career on the collegiate level began in 1975 as the athletics director at the University of Texas-San Antonio. He spent nine years (1975-84) as the leader of the Roadrunner athletics department before being hired at Houston.

Davalos returned to San Antonio to serve as the director of community relations for the San Antonio Spurs of the National Basketball Association. Davalos also worked as a television and radio commentator for the Spurs. He spent one season with the NBA team until his return to Houston as the athletics director in 1987.

Before Davalos entered the ranks of athletics administration he was a long time basketball coach. His coaching career began in 1961 as an assistant coach at Georgetown (Ky.) College. He also had assistant coaching stints at Kentucky (1962) and Auburn (1963-70) before being named head men's basketball coach at the University of the South in Seawee, Tennessee, in 1970. He was the head coach at South for three seasons (1970-73).

Davalos led the Tigers to the College Athletic Conference championship and produced the best single-season record in the school's history with a 23-4 mark in 1972-73.

Davalos moved to the San Antonio Spurs of the NBA in 1973. He was an assistant coach and Director of Player Personnel for three years, until his move to the University of Texas-San Antonio.

Davalos' leadership in college athletics began as early as 1960, when he was the captain of the Southwest Texas State basketball team. An All-American point guard for the Bobcats, Davalos led SWTS to an NAIA national title. He was inducted into the NAIA Basketball Hall of Fame in 1977, the Southwest Texas State Hall of Fame in 1983, the Texas High School Basketball Hall of Fame in 1999 and the San Antonio Sports Hall of Fame in 2002. He was also named a Southwest Texas State Distinguished Alumnus in 2001.

A native of San Antonio, Texas, Davalos graduated from Southwest Texas State in 1960 with a degree in Education. He received his master's degree in Education from Georgetown (Ky.) College in 1962.

Always a leader in the community, Davalos was twice (1984, 1986) chairman of the San Antonio Summer Youth Games. He previously served on the board of directors of the San Antonio Boys Club of America and the San Antonio YMCA. Davalos currently serves on the Albuquerque Sports Council board of directors.

Davalos has been recognized repeatedly throughout his career for his efforts on behalf of young people. In 1976 he received the Catholic Youth Organization's "Man in Youth" award. He is also a former president of the San Antonio Quarterback Club.

Davalos, 65, is married to the former Gail Marlin. They have three children, Dave, Doug and Deana.

Conrad Colbert

Deputy Director of Athletics

Conrad Colbert came out of retirement on July 1, 2002, to reassume the duties of senior associate athletics director. He was named deputy director of athletics in 2003. Colbert was UNM's senior associate for six years before retiring on June 30, 1999, however, he remained on staff in the capacity of legislative liaison. Colbert has played a large part in helping UNM secure more than $10 million from the state legislature for the expansion and renovation of athletics facilities. He oversees all daily operations of the department.

Overall, Colbert is in his 38th year of intercollegiate athletics. A 1960 graduate of the University of Iowa, Colbert worked in athletics administration at his alma mater for 10 years, serving as an administrative assistant and assistant business manager. He went into private business before becoming the assistant athletics director at Kansas State for nine years (1977-85).

Colbert was director of athletics at UT-Pan American in 1986, then joined current UNM athletics director Rudy Davalos at the University of Houston in 1987. Colbert came to the University of New Mexico in February of 1993.

Colbert and his wife JoAnn have four grown children: sons, Craig, Chris and Cary, and a daughter, Catherine, and five grandchildren: Austin, Cash, Gabrielle, Brigitah and Chance.
